Health-Related Assistance

National Education Organization – Health Information Network

NEA's Health Information Network includes a trained crisis response team, and offers materials and support for educators, parents, and community members to help students and families cope with crises, including tornadoes. The guide is available at <http://crisisguide.neahin.org/crisisguide>. Additional, hopefully helpful information can also be found at our We Stand with Oklahoma site:

<http://www.nea.org/home/we-stand-with-oklahoma.html>

Fresenius Medical Care has set up a hotline at (800) 626-1297 for people who are on dialysis but are without power. Patients can call about local treatment options.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield has setup at the 1st Baptist Church in Moore on 27th and I-35 (across from the SSA Office) so that can help members who require medical care that may have lost all their identification and member ID information; they can also help members navigate any other health care system questions or problems that they might run into. Their toll free number for anyone who needs it: 1-800-722-3130.

The SoonerCare Helpline is available Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at 1-800-987-7767. Assistance is available to replace lost or destroyed medication, durable medical equipment, medical ID cards, etc. The Helpline can also assist members with transportation needs to medical appointments. SoonerCare members whose providers lost their office site to the storms may also contact the Helpline for assistance in finding another provider.
